publican system. During a memorable period in our political history, when the advocates of federal intervention upon the subject of slavery in the Territories had well-nigh precipitated the country into a rerolution," the northern interventionists, demanding the Wilmot proviso for the prohibition of slavery, and the southern interventionists, then few in number and without a single representative in either house of Congress, insisting upon Congressional legislation for the protection of slavery, in opposition to the wishes of the people in either case, it will be remembered that it required all the wisdom, power, and influence of a Clay and a Webster, and a Cass, supported by the conservative and patriotic men, Whig and Democratic, of that day, to devise and carry out a line of policy which would restore peace to the country and stability to the Union. The essential living principle of that policy, as applied in the legislation of 1850, was and now is, non-intervention by Congress with slavery in the Territories. The fair application of this just and equitable principle restored harmony and fraternity to a distracted country.

If we now depart from that wise and just policy, which produced those happy results, and permit the country to be again distracted, if, not precipitated into a revolution, by a sectional con-test between pro-slavely and anti-slavery interventionists, where shall we look for another Clay, another Webster, another Cass, to pilot the ship of State over the breakers into the haven of peace and safety?

WASHINGTON CITY, July 9, 1860. DEAR SIR: I have your letter of the 23d ult., by which I am officially informed of my nomination for the office of President of the United States by the Democratic National Convention, lately assembled at Baltimore. The circumstances of this nomination will justify me in referring to its personal

I have not sought nor desired to be of President. When my name was presented to the convention at Charleston it was withdrawn by a friend, in obedience to my expressed wishes.-My views had not changed when the convention re-assembled at Baltimore, and when I heard of the differences which occurred there, my indisposition to be connected prominently with the enuvass was confirmed and expressed to many friends.

Without discussing the occurrences which preceded the nominations, and which are, or soon will be, well undersay that Inpprove, as just and necesthat the confidence in my personal and public character, implied by the action of the convention, will always be gratefully remembered, and it is but just also to my own feelings, to express my gratification at the association of my name with that of my friend, Gen. Lane, a patriot and a soldier, whose great services in the field and in council entitle him to the gratitude and confidence of his countrymen.

The resolutions adopted by the convention have my cordial approval .-They are just to all parts of the Union, to all Our citizens, native and naturalized, and they form a noble policy for any administration. The questions touching the rights ofpersons and property, which have of lare been much discussed, find in those resolutions a constitutional solution .-Our Union is a confederacy of equal, sovereign States, for the purposes enumerated in the federal constitution.-Whatever the common government holds in trust for all the States must be enjoyed equally by each. It controls the Territories in trust for all the States. Nothing less than sovereighty can destroy or impair the rights of persons or property. The territorial governments are subordinate and temporary, and not sovereign; hence they cannot destroy or impair the rigts of persons or property. While they continue to be Territories they are under the control of Congress; but the constitution nowhere confers on any branch of the federal government the power to discriminate against the rights of the States or the property of their citizens in the Territories. Tollows that the citizens of all the States may enter the Territories of the Union with their property-of whatever kind-and enjoy it during the territorial condition without let or hindrance, either by Congress or by the subordinate territorial governments. These principles flow directly from the absence of severeignty in the territorial government, and from the equality of the States. Indeed, they are essential to the equality which is and ever has been the vital principle of our constitutional Union. They have been settled legislatively-settled judiciallyand are sustained by right and season.

They rest on the rock of the constitution. They will preserve the constitution-they will preserve the Union. It is idle to attempt to smother these great issues, or to misrepresent them by the use of partisan phrases, which These things must all be done with are misleading and delusive. Without discussing the occurrences which preceded the nominations, and which are, or soon will be, well understood by the country, I have only to say that I approve, as just and necessary to the preservation of the national organization, and the sacred rights of representation, the action of the convention over which you continued to preside; and thus approving it, and having resolved to sustain it, I feel that it does not become me to select the position I shall occupy, nor to shrink from the responsibilities of the post to which I have been assigned. Accordingly I accept the nomination from a sense of public duty, and, as I think, uninfluenced, in any degree, by the allurements of ambition.

The resolutions adopted by the convention have my cordial approval .--They are just to all parts of the Union, to all our citizens, native and naturalized, and they form a noble policy for great respect, your friend, any administration.

The questions touching the rights of persons and property, which have of fare been much discussed, find in these resolutions a constitutional solution .-Our Union is a confederacy of equal, sovereign States, for the purposes enumerated in the federal constitution .-Whatever the common government holds in trust for all the States must be enjoyed equally by each. It controls the Territories in trust for all the States. Nothing less than sovereighty can destroy or impair the rights of persons or property. The territorial governments are subordinate and temporary, and not sovereign; hence they cannot destroy policy, as applied in the legislation of or impair the rigts of persons or proper-While they continue to be Territories they are under the control of Conconfers on any branch of the federal government the power to discriminate against the rights of the States or the property of their citizens in the Territories. I follows that the entizens of all the Union with their property-of whatever kind-and enjoy it during the territorial condition without let or hindrance, either by Congress or by the

These principles flow directly from the absence of sovereignty in the territorial government, and from the equality of the States. Indeed, they are essential to the equality which is and ever has been the vital principle of our constitutional Union. They have been set-tled legislatively-settled judiciallyand are sustained by right and season. They rest on the rock of the constitution. They will preserve the constitution—they will preserve the Union.

It is idle to attempt to smother these great issues, or to misrepresent them by the use of partisan phrases, which as "intervention," "congressional slave Evarts, and Grinnell, were all absent. impaired, to our posterity, the blessed code," and the like, and will penetrate The writer intimates that they were inheritance which we have received in to the real questions involved.
